Dear Hiring Team,

I am applying for the Software Engineer role at Paperboat Works. I enjoy building tools that remove friction from creative work, and your fictional brief for a shared production workspace is a useful example of the kind of problem I would like to solve.

At Lantern Studio, I built a review service that brought six approval steps into a shared workspace. The work involved understanding how designers and reviewers made decisions, then translating that process into a service the team could maintain. I would bring the same attention to users and reliable delivery to this role.

Earlier, at Mosslight Tools, I worked with support and design on searchable assets and automated imports. Those projects taught me to validate quality against concrete examples and make operational handover part of delivery. I would welcome a conversation about the workflows your team wants to improve.

Kind regards,
Avery Quill
